To whom it may concern: re epm Projects Pty Ltd (epm)

Northern Beaches Christian School (NBCS) engaged epm in early 2008 to assist us with an $18,000,000 building program. At the time of engagement, the project was well underway; however it was not going well. NBCS recognised that there was serious risk of the project not being completed as required.

Through astute administration, epm was able to identify problems, bring the project under control and manage the plethora of issues and players involved in the very complex project. Their expertise in construction and project management were invaluable in resolution of the significant challenges of the project. An outcome was that the risk of the project being unsuccessful was minimised.

The project is now complete and I would recommend that any organisation that is considering a construction project consider engaging epm in the planning stages of a project to manage project risk, ensure the design team are productive and complete in their roles and to minimise costs of the project.

Sincerely
